Epperson to get new trial and new judge

Case remanded in DUI murder accident

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

There were a few fireworks during last Wednesday's circuit court motion hour at the Powell County Courthouse.

The family of a man convicted of manslaughter apparently did not like a decision by Powell Circuit Judge Frank Fletcher and now may have to wait a few additional weeks to see their case move forward. Fletcher removed himself from the case.

Brian P. Epperson was found guilty in January of 2013 after being tried for the Nov. 14, 2011 death of Donald Tharpe. Tharpe died on impact when Epperson's truck crossed the centerline on Hardwick's Creek Road near Clay City causing a head on collision. A passenger in Tharpe's truck, Constance Puckett, was injured and had to be flown out to the UK Medical Center.

Epperson was indicted for DUI and murder, along with the assault charges on Puckett. But just before his trial was set to begin the court allowed Commonwealth Attorney Darrell Herald to amend the indictment. That amendment under a different subsection of the state's DUI law, Epperson's appeal stated, moved the burden of proof from the state having to prove impairment to only proving that Epperson had substances in his system that could impair him.

After the first trial Epperson's attorney was quoted. "We plan to appeal," David Ward told reporters after the trial. "The prosecution amended the indictment for DUI literally 30 minutes before the trial began. So we will have an appeal ready to file at the sentencing."

The appeals court agreed that the amendment "fundamentally altered the defense's strategy literally on the eve of the trial." The defense that Epperson's attorney had planned, under the amended charge would have "resulted in an admission of guilt under the DUI statute," the appeals court ruled. They also stated that it was the "very essence of prejudice".

Epperson, through his attorney, asked for a continuance after a jury had been selected and the trial was about to begin, according to the appeal motion.

However, Powell Circuit Judge

Frank Fletcher denied the motion.

Members of Brian Epperson's family and one of his attorneys was called back to the bench by Powell Circuit Judge Frank Fletcher after showing some displeasure with his ruling to have Epperson present in two weeks for an arraignment. ## Mobile meth lab found in Stanton

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

It seems like there is no end to it. A Powell County Deputy and Clay City Police Officer was trying to serve a warrant last Wednesday morning and came across another meth lab. But this one was mobile.

Powell County Deputy Marty Tipton and Clay City Police Officer Billy Rice were attempting to serve a warrant at Pine Creek Apartments in Stanton early that morning. Deputy Tipton and Officer Rice became suspicious of the activity around a nearby pickup truck.

According to their report, "further investigation led to the discovery of a substantial inventory of methamphetamine precursors in a mobile meth kit, finished meth, and drug paraphernalia."

It also led to two people, who are now facing drug charges.

Dorothy Hill was arrested and charged with manufacturing methamphetamine, trafficking in controlled substances (methamphetamine), trafficking in controlled substances (drug unspecified), tampering with physical evidence and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Jody Conley, of Mount Sterling, was arrested and charged with manufacturing methamphetamine, possession of methamphetamine, tampering with physical evidence and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Both were lodged in the Powell County Detention Center. It was the eighth meth lab situation that was busted in the past five weeks in Powell County.

County gets money to repair Echo Hollow

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet announced on Monday that the Powell County Fiscal Court will receive $7,700 in County Road Aid emergency funds. These funds will be used for repairs to a drainage structure on Echo Hollow Road (CR 1366).

"It is important that we help cities and counties fund emergency repairs to local roadways, because those routes are vital links in the state's transportation network," Transportation Secretary Mike Hancock said. "Solid transportation infrastructure is vital in Powell County and across the Commonwealth."

The Powell County Fiscal Court is responsible for administering the work.

Clay City looking into water tank issue and sewer plant property

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

The Clay City Council had a few business items to take care of before they could finalize plans for the Clay City Ice Cream Social scheduled for this Friday evening. From surveys of property to dealing with political signs and when they could officially go up, the council handled their business in just under an hour and half last Monday evening.

The city had been dealing with a leaking water tower on Pompeii, just north of the. According to Mayor James Caudill the problem is bad enough that based on professionals opinions who have looked at it, something needs to be done soon.

The tank sits on property at the tip of Pompeii where the road splits. The water tower sits on a piece of property that the county purchased back in 1977. But the city has an easement from the county so they can service the tank. According to surveyor Kevin Davis, the city would have to build a road since the county owns a 30 foot path that leads to the land. The city currently uses a driveway between two residences near the tanks, with the owners permission.

"Anything you need to do you would have to involve the county since they own the property," Davis advised.

Caudill told the council the tank is in dire "need of repair." he also advised that he had been pricing alternatives and the repair. "I have one estimate that it would cost around the $175,000 price range to coat the inside and outside, and then repaint it," Caudill said.

That would require the tank to be drained and the work would possibly take three to four months. "The city would still have water, but I'm not sure how much the pressure would be affected on Pompeii," Caudill added. No decision was made as the council and mayor want to get more information on the situation and options.

The council was also advised that the old sewer plant survey was not fully completed due to some problems with past records dealing with the boundary lines. The council has been concerned about the plant property becoming a dumping ground, as some people have already used it for that purpose. The police department would like to fence it in and use it to hold impounded vehicles. The council believes other equipment could also be kept at the location. The council will check into the matter more before making a decision.

The council did vote to approve allowing the police department to become part of the Bluegrass Area Central Kentucky Unified Police Protection Services or BACKUPPS. The program allows departments who have joined the chance to help other communities and still have jurisdictional powers like arrest if needed while working in those areas. The officers would only have that authority of called into the area to help for an emergency. Officers from other areas coming to Clay City would be treated the same and the officer's department would be liable for their actions.

Departments in Fayette, Clark, Montgomery and most of Central Kentucky have joined the program. The council voted 5-0, with the absence of Ralph Patrick, to approve joining the program.

The council also voted to accept the audits from fiscal year that ended on June 30, 2013. That means that the city is almost caught up with the current year.

The council voted to accept the parks and recreation board's recommendations of allowing a memorial softball tournament to be held at the city park on Sept. 20. They recommended that Kandi Brewer be appointed to replace Eric Briscoe on the parks and recreation board.

As for the ice cream social, the council voted unanimously that no commercial booths, or for-profit organizations could set up inside the park during the event. That goes with a policy the council and board agreed to before youth softball and baseball season began to make sure that no commercial businesses set up inside the park.

The council then addressed a question as to when political candidates could put up signs inside the city limits. The city and Stanton both passed similar ordinances four years ago dealing with the issue. Upon review the ordinance showed that political signs could go up 60 days before election day. That means that on Sept. 5 the signs could go up. The election is Nov. 4.

Herald claimed that therapeutic levels did not matter because the experts had testified, even the defense doctor, that the combination of medications would not be prescribed together and that they had a cumulative affect.

The jury believed the prosecution and found him guilty of manslaughter.

The jury recommended a six year sentence. He was eligible for parole after 14 months and was officially sentenced a month after the trial.

Epperson did have a parole hearing on July 2, 2013, but he was deferred for 18 months. That means he could be eligible for parole on Jan. 1, 2015. There is no timetable as to when a new trial would be held.

According to court personnel a new judge could be appointed within two to three weeks, but there is no timetable as to when the case will be redocketed until a special judge is appointed.

Brian Epperson after his trial in 2013 will make you like me later on. But I'll turn this over and let a special judge be appointed. I'm tired of being questioned by you all on every move and all I've tried to do was be fair."

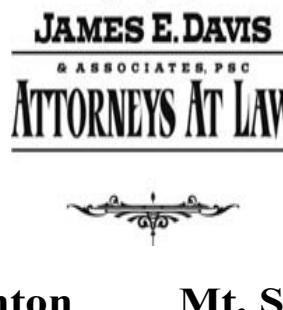

Fletcher allowed the family to leave the courtroom, with smiles on their faces.

Epperson's other claims and appeals were denied by the appeals court. Epperson and Ward claimed that the denial of a motion to suppress toxicology evidence and having equal protection under the DUI law were both shot down by the appeals court. The court ruled that the subject of the toxicology reports or how the test were conducted were items that could be argued to the jury. That included how long the blood samples sat before being tested and the fact that the expiration date on the test kit came into question.

After the trial the Times was notified by law enforcement officials, who got the information from laboratory staff, that the expiration date was basically a guideline as long as the tubes had not been compromised. As for the equal protection Epperson tried to claim that people under a physician's care was treated unfairly under the DUI law and that there was a double standard. The court stated that they found "fault with every level of Epperson's argument" on the subject and that the statute "does not provide a blanket of immunity for those with a prescription."

At the original trial evidence suggested that there were several medications in Epperson's system. The report showed

Words of Comfort

My children under my wings of love shall you dwell in times of trouble. Safe from all harm I will carry you. Remember I said in my Holy Word that I would be with you always even until the end.

Fear not my dear children, yes the world is in turmoil and strife, but I have overcome the world. See me as I really am, not as you would see a natural man. My people, I am all powerful, all knowing.

The earth is my footstool, heaven is my throne. If not for my great mercy I would have destroyed the world long ago, but I called the souls every day to come into the ark while there is still time. I am the ark of safety and I am coming for my own very, very soon.

Keep the faith and know that I keep my word. My precious children I love you so much. My eyes are ever upon you. Please turn to your Savior in times of trouble. My arms are always open to hold you. Draw near to me and by my holy spirit you will see great and mighty things.

Trapp School celebrates 36th Reunion

The Trapp School reunion was held Aug. 2 at the Epperson First Church of God's John R. Chambers Fellowship Hall. A memorial was held in memory of 14 former students who had attended Trapp School that passed away since the 2013 reunion. A moment of silence and a candle was lit for each one.

Harvey Spry entertained with several songs. Irene Woosley was recognized as the oldest person present. Tina Gatson Kovart from Texas traveled the farthest. Danny Baker received the door prize.

Ben Petrey and Cameron Ginter each were presented a $1,000 scholarship. Ben plans to attend University of Louisville and Cameron plans to attend UK.

A silent auction was held as a fundraiser for the scholarship fund. Dinner was served by Epperson Willing Workers Missionary ladies to 90 guests. Those present were: Mae Wills Epperson, Doyle Stone, Cameron Ginter, Leslie Hammer, Margaret Spangler, Kim Spangler Miller, Sarah Miller, Pete and Bonnie Hardy, Francis Gatson Henry and David, Harvey Spry, Danny Baber, Shirley Hall, Earl, Sheila Wells and Taegan, Polly Todd, Verna Catron, Jerry Spivey, Larry and Connie Haggard, Linda Meers, Donald Lowry, Bonnie White, Otella Witt, Harold, Linda and Austin Ritchie, Kay Wilson, Beulah Wilson, Mary Rupis, Jean Pasley, Irene Woosley, Lewis Petrey, Ben Petrey, Judy Hicks, Judy DeVary, Anna Clay Chism, Jimmy Clark, Jean Chism Patton, Marie (Monk) Berryman, Marshall DeVary, Becky McVey, Ogie Hamilton, Stephanie Kirk and Conner, Mathew Kirk, Alta Johnson, Eugene Hampton, Tonya Estes, Debbie Wiseman, Virginia Castle, Mary Mae Pace, Tom and Arville Hunt, Larry and Jeanette Centers, Lula Mae Puckett and daughter Lois Ann, Pam DeVary Wells, Marena Stone, Kent and Virginia Combs and two children, Grace McLemore, Thelma Horton, Bill Hunt, Anita Hunt Bridges, Alice Curtis, Lynwood Curtis, Robert E. JAMES COOK

Saying so long is never easy, especially to a friend

way, I have hated to see them go. I understood the ones who went on to better themselves, for that is what we need to strive to do every day.

But with Sarah it is a little different.

I have known Sarah and her family since she was a little girl. I have watched her pick up her glove and bat for the first time in softball. I have seen her grow up, take part in Miss Powell County, play in the flag football game before Homecoming and I watched her graduate from PCHS.

Since then she has gone on to get married, have four boys, went through a lot in life (as we all do) and yet she has not changed much at all. Her demeanor is one of humbleness, kindness and a caring nature.

In the office she is the Yin to my Yang, so to speak. While I may have been more controversial, confrontational and go for the juggler type, Sarah was kinder, more understanding and more patient.

There were some who used to tell me, nay, warn me not to be a "bad influence on her." They wanted to make sure she did not become jaded with the world and would remain the same sweet girl they have always known.

I tried, I really did try.

But as it goes, when you work with someone long enough they rub off on you. I have seen Sarah become bolder, she will stand up for herself, her friends and especially her family. She can quiet down a complainer pretty quickly if they try to get out of hand and still somehow be their friend when its all over. She has gained confidence in her abilities and has even been a very important part of what you see in this newspaper every week.

I do listen to her suggestions and ideas.

But there is a flip side to the coin. Just as I may have rubbed off on her, so too has she rubbed off on me. I have noticed I take a more laid back approach to stories now days. I try to be more understanding, more caring and even more tolerant of those who criticize me and this paper even if they don't have all their facts. Sarah has taught me that I can still do my job and be nice.

Thanks for that lesson my friend.

When I was about to make the decision seven years ago on whether or not to come back to the Times I did my homework. I wanted to know more about the structure of the paper under the owner. I wanted to know how the feeling was in the office and I wanted to make sure it would be a decision I would not regret.

When I found out that Sarah McKinney Bloom was the office manager, the decision was an easy one. I knew I could work with her and we would get along just fine. Well we did not get along "just fine."

We got along like good friends and family do. We may disagree (very seldom) but at the end of the day we both put the needs of the other and this paper first and second (in that order). In fact I may not have took the job if it had not been for Sarah being here.

Now I have to say so long. Not good-bye, because that means you're not coming back. She will still be in town and we will see each other at games, probably call each other to see how things are going and keep in touch. I hope she will write us some of those amazing columns.

But when someone you have depended on everyday for seven years or even more, even if it is just a co-worker, moves on a small part of you goes with them. It is a little harder when that person is more than a co-worker, they are a friend – a real friend.

I tip my hat and bow to you

Sarah. You have done well at the task God gave you at this paper for a decade. You have touched lives and hearts with your columns. You have been a voice of reason in a sea of chaos. But most importantly you are a friend to a man who needed one in a job where friends are hard to come by.

I wish you all the best and

I know you will stay in touch. I have worked with a lot of good and great people over the many years and many jobs I have held. But none of them, not one, can I ever say was the best at what they do. And that is just being you. Don't ever change, the world needs more people like you.

I'm just saying . . .

I know it has been rare that you have seen one of my columns this summer. The every day hectic schedule and always on the go atmosphere of a newspaper seems to get the best of me sometimes. But I was not going to allow a busy schedule or lack of free time to keep me from writing a column this week.

Why you may ask?

Because today (Tuesday, Aug. 26) is the last day I get to work with a friend.

As many of you know by now Sarah Bloom, the brightest and most talented writer we have at the Times, is leaving us. Sarah has always had a passion to work with animals, she even studied for it in college. She has been doing that as a second job for the past three years and now she has a chance to do it a lot more.

I cannot blame her. One needs to follow their dreams when they can.

Some may say, well others have left the paper and it did not seem to disturb you too much. But for each, in my own

I tried, I really did try.

Robin Williams made us laugh but we're not laughing now as we mourn his suicidal death.

His tragic ending has placed a national spotlight on the seriousness of depression. In the midst of this heart wrenching tragedy maybe good will come as people may openly discuss their daily demons of clinical despair.

We know that millions of Americans deal with depression. The statistics differ from sources but we can safely say most Americans have been depressed a few times during life.

Many are never treated while others sadly become addicted to alcohol, prescription drugs and even turn to illegal drugs to cope with their mental battles.

Robin Williams had it all, it seemed. Something was missing and even with clinical help he couldn't eliminate the internal monster that dogged him to his unfortunate ending.

Who am I to spout out a few answers in lieu of one who had accomplished so much and was loved by so many? My rambling feeble thoughts are insignificant but I have to wonder some of the following:

Did he have two or three people in his life that he could really talk to? Most people don't.

Had his life become void of challenge? Maybe the lack of new goals and new ambitions dulled the sound of the morning trumpet that beckons us to spring from our beds with energy.

Further, we know that he was dealing with his health; it is commonly reported that depression surrounds heart surgeries. He had gone through an aortic valve replacement, a very serious surgery.

For all of us who have known at least a few depressing moments in life I would offer the following: Try to have one or two people that you can talk to about anything. Reinvent yourself from time to time and do something different.

Get out of the house as much as possible. Limit your daily media including TV, social media etc. Try to get daily exercise. Physical work and activity clears some of the mental cobwebs. And, connect with your Creator. Look up for a source of help and strength that nothing or no one else can give.

America's Depression, Robin Williams and millions more

By DR. HAROLD PEASE

Robin Williams made us laugh but we're not laughing now as we mourn his suicidal death.

His tragic ending has placed a national spotlight on the seriousness of depression. In the midst of this heart wrenching tragedy maybe good will come as people may openly discuss their daily demons of clinical even before the creation of the Articles of Confederation our first constitution and government. Notice the intensity of his appeal to God to help them obtain their freedom from British rule.

"O Lord our Heavenly Father, high and mighty King of kings, and Lord of lords, who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers on earth and reignest with power supreme and uncontrolled over all the Kingdoms, Empires and Governments; look down in mercy, we beseech Thee, on these our American States, who have fled to Thee from the rod of the oppressor and thrown themselves on Thy gracious protection, desiring to be henceforth dependent only on Thee. To Thee have they appealed for the righteousness of their cause; to Thee do they now look up for that countenance and support, which Thou alone canst give. Take them, therefore, Heavenly Father, under Thy nurturing care; give them wisdom in Council and valor in the field; defeat the malicious designs of our cruel adversaries; convince them of the unrighteousness of their Cause and if they persist in their sanguinary purposes, of own unerring justice, sounding in their hearts, constrain them to drop the weapons of war from their unnerved hands in the day of battle!

"Be Thou present, O God of wisdom, and direct the councils of this honorable assembly; enable them to settle things on the best and surest foundation. That the scene of blood may be speedily closed; that order, harmony and peace may be effectually restored, and truth and justice, religion and piety, prevail and flourish amongst the people. Preserve the health of their bodies and vigor of their minds; shower down on them and the millions they here represent, such temporal blessings as Thou seest expedient for them in this world and crown them with everlasting glory in the world to come. All this we ask in the name and through the merits of Jesus Christ, Thy Son and our Savior. Amen."

Even during the Constitutional Convention, prayer was referenced as a solution to the tension in the room on June 28, 1787, when the patriarch of that assembly, Benjamin Franklin, stood and said, addressing the Chair: "I have lived, Sir, a long time, and the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth: that God Governs in the affairs of men. And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without his notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without his aid?"

"We have been assured, Sir, in the sacred writings, that 'except the Lord build the House they labour in vain that build it.' I firmly believe this; and I also believe that without his concurring aid we shall succeed in this political building no better, than the Builders of Babel . . . I therefore beg leave to move—that henceforth prayers imploring the assistance of Heaven, and its blessings on our deliberations, be held in this Assembly every morning before we proceed to business, and that one or more of the Clergy of this City be requested to officiate in that Service."

Both House and Senate prayers are recorded daily in the Congressional Record. Some prayers give council and particulars, most are fairly generic and short. All ask for the assistance of Heaven.

So Congress asked God for help in their deliberations, this time through the prayer of Reverend Roger Spradlin. Good! May we never forget to do so!! It is the essence of our strength!!

our nation's faith in God as Sovereign Lord of this nation. This honors the historic separation of Church and State as outlined in the 1st Amendment, but not the separation of God and State, which the Founders strongly opposed.

The prayer given this past week was Rev. Roger Spradlin, pastor of Valley Baptist Church in Bakersfield, California, representing a congregation of more than 8,000 followers. Prayers are similar requesting wisdom and courage. Spradlin prayed, "We acknowledge that our country is facing serious challenges, and that our world is in crisis. Give this body the courage that is necessary to lead" (Bakersfield Californian, August 1, 2014, p. 5).

The tradition of prayer in government assemblies is long standing. The first recorded national prayer was given by Reverend Jacob Duche, Rector of Christ Church of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in the First Continental Congress Sept. 7, 1774,

Lady Pirates open season 1-1

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

The Powell County volleyball season is underway and they opened their season with an impressive showing at Morgan County. The Lady Pirates wasted very little time in dispatching the Lady Cougars by scores of 25-9, 25-18 and 25-13.

In the first set Powell broke out from a 4-4 tie to go up 18-4, scoring 13 straight points with senior Haleigh Ritchie serving. Powell won easily, 25-9. In the second set things got a lot closer, with Morgan taking leads at 6-2 and 7-3. But Powell got on track and went up 12-11. Morgan came back to lead again at 13-12, but the Lady Pirates went on a run of 6 straight to go up for good at 18-13, enroute to the 25-18.

In the first set losing their way to Powell County High victory.

The third set was tied at 4-4 when Powell took the lead for the rest of the set at 8-6. The seventh rotation saw the Lady Pirates go on a run of six straight points with senior Breanna Durbin serving. With a commanding 22-12 lead and Ritchie now serving, Powell finished the match with two straight scoring serves. Ritchie finished the night with 13 aces, while junior Alicia Pelfrey had 20 assists.

Last Thursday was the home opener for Powell, as they hosted the Lady Golden Lions of Garrard County. It was a four match series, but unfortunately Garrard walked out with the match and the win.

Garrard topped Powell with scores of 25-10, 21-25, 25-21 and 25-23.

In the first set losing their way to Powell County High School did not seem to bother the Lady Lions. The visitors jumped out to a 6-0 lead at the start and stretched their advantage to 15-4. They continued their scoring frenzy and went up 19-7 before coasting to the win. The Lady Pirates kept a slim lead in the second set until Garrard scored five straight to tie the score at 20-20. Powell then went up 23-20 and gave up only one point while scoring two for the win. The only one of the match for the home team.

The third set was another close one, with Powell taking the early advantage at 5-0 and 9-2. But Garrard came back to tie at 16-16. The Lady Lions ran off seven straight to take the lead for good at 23-21. The fourth set saw the Lady Pirates fall behind 23-14 but then rallied to pull to within four at 23-19. After another Garrard score, Powell again came back to make the score 24-23 before a tip by Garrard fell in to give the visitors the win.

Powell was set to host a district game with Owsley County this past Monday night. On Wednesday they were scheduled to set sail to Breathitt County before coming back home on Thursday for another district game with Lee County.

Pirates set to make run at playoffs, open season Friday

By GREG MCINTOSH
Times Sportswriter

The 2014 Powell County Football Pirates are ready to hit the gridiron for another exciting season. Powell will be led by Head Coach Tony Burchett, who is in his sixth season at the helm of the Pirate ship.

This years team should follow the same pattern that Coach Burchett has brought to the field. Powell should use the "belly" offense to control the clock and limit possessions for the opposing team. The Pirates as usual will throw the ball when given the opportunity.

Defensively, Powell will try to hold opponents to small gains and limit the big plays. Powell has been very competitive in its pre-season scrimmages.

The Pirates open their season at home this year against a very experienced Magoffin County team this Friday night. The following week Powell will be at home again playing Lincoln County. Powell goes on the road for its next two games before the district season begins. This is the last year for the current district alignment.

The Pirates play Garrard County and Western Hills at home and travel to Estill County, Bath County and Bourbon County in district games. The district again should be competitive. Bourbon County should be considered the favorite with Garrard County and Estill County fielding very good teams. Bath, Powell and Western Hills will be competitive but all have to replace a lot of starters.

Come join the Pirate Football bandwagon this Friday night at 7:30 to start the season. Magoffin County travels to face the Pirates in what should be a very exciting football game. Come show your support to the players and coaches and help lead the Pirates to victory.

50 years after a tragedy, a loving legacy lives on

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

Many residents of Powell County can tell you where the Stanton Airport is located. They can even tell you where the Mt. View Drive-In is at and probably several stories about making trips there in their lifetime. But not too many can tell you about one of the men who helped to make them possible. That is because unfortunately the man who had ideas left this world way too early.

Some may recall the old one-room school house on Cane Creek many years ago and the young teacher who helped them. She left the profession to raise a family. Both loved their family and this county but was killed in a tragic accident 50 years ago. Hargus Denzil Faulkner and Virginia Martin Faulkner, may have been taken way too soon, but they have left a legacy.

Denzil, as many called him, was killed in a head-on collision near the Cumberland Falls State Park on Aug. 16, 1964. Faulkner and his family had gone to visit a relative who was reportedly sick with cancer. After a side trip to the state park, an area he loved to visit, the accident occurred just four miles south of Corbin on U.S. 25-W.

Faulkner's car was hit head-on by a vehicle driven by Dr. Ronald C. S. Young of Birmingham, Michigan. That couple died in the crash as well. The accident was a tragedy in many ways.

Faulkner, 37 at the time, his wife, Virginia Martin Faulkner, 42, and two of his four children that were in the car were killed. Lanna Kay Faulkner, an active 12 year old who was in 4-H and was like a second mom to her siblings, along with Ellis Faulkner, 5, the baby of the family, also passed away. Two other boys in the car, Denny, 15 at the time, and Charles, 7, survived but were both seriously injured.

Following a hospital stay and some court discussions Denny and Charles stayed with their maternal grandparents, Charles and Mattie Martin. Both of them passed away when the youngest survivor, Charles, was still a teenager. He was 15 when his grandmother passed away and 17 when his grandfather died.

Tragedy seemed to plague the Faulkner's.

"I had a sister, Patsy Ann, who died when she was two years old," Charles Faulkner remembers. "She had apparently got into some baby aspirins and momma and daddy took her to the doctor. He didn't pump her stomach or nothing, but said she would be alright. She died when they got back home."

It would not be hard to believe that facing such seemingly cruel events that the two boys who survived may take a path in life that may lead to other problems. But Charles and Denny went on to graduate high school and become hard workers both in their own right.

Denny, helped to work with the state highway department and highway maintenance. He worked on projects as an engineer and in mapping for the state, and even worked at Rockwell for awhile. He finished his working days, retiring, as a foreman for Hinkle Contracting.

Charles, also worked for the state with the highway department. Since retiring from that he has built houses and run equipment on some jobs. Both were things he loved to do.

Denzil was quite well known in the area. His generosity and smile were two things those who remember him brag about. He worked hard and had a lot of ideas.

"He was very personable. Very outgoing and everyone liked him," David Baker, the current owner of the Mt. View Drive-In and a cousin to Denzil said. "Everybody knew him and liked him."

Baker also said that Denzil loved to help people and even donated to help the high school athletic program on several occasions.

"He used to have this old wallet that had a chain on it, you know the kind I'm talking about, and he would see Bill Orme, (the athletic director and basketball coach back then) and if the teams needed something, Bill told me once, that Denzil would just reach in that wallet and give him money to help," Baker recalled. "I believe Bill told me that if Denzil had not been so generous who knows if the athletic program would have been around. He just loved to help."

Denzil loved to fly and had his own plane. It was a 1946 J-3 "Cub." Since he loved to fly so much, he joined on when a group of men who wanted to open an airport at Stanton. He supported it and flew from there often. Until he was told he was too much of a daredevil. So he made his own landing strip on his farm on Cane Creek and built his own hanger.

Denzil Faulkner loved to fly and had his own airplane, as well as his own hanger and landing strip on his farm on Cane Creek. The stories about his "daredevil" flying still can be heard any where his old friends and family meet.

"He was quite a daredevil. I've heard stories and David Lee (Baker) can tell you some, about how he would fly under the bridges on the Mountain Parkway and he was even known to touch the planes wheel down on the top of the drive-in concession stand," Charles Faulkner recalled from the stories he was told.

"I remember once my brother told me he took him up and they dipped down, touched the top of the concession stand and barely made it over the big screen. Daddy told my brother that Momma didn't need to know everything they did when they were out. He liked to have fun from what I was told."

Faulkner even recalled stories of his father taking people for a ride and when they landed they would be scared from the barrel rolls or under-the-bridge flights. The passenger may have been scared, but Denzil had a smile on his face.

"He also had an idea about a drag strip, that was before we had one. He wanted to build one on the farm," Charles recalls his family telling him about it. "But I reckon Mom and Granny said they were not going to have all that noise up there."

"Yes, and he (Denzil) went and talked to Mr. Kennon about the idea, was my understanding," Baker quickly added. The Kennon family now runs the Mt. Park Dragway in Clay City and have for the past 51 years.

But the drive-in is one legacy that may be fading away. Higher costs and newly required equipment have made it hard to keep the drive-in open. But it was Denzil, Jack Kidd and J.M. Mahaffee who started the drive-in.

"Those three got it going. Kidd was the county agriculture agent and I believe the state told him he could not be in a business venture like that, so Denzil bought his third," Baker recalled. "I had come in from the military back in 1957 and went to Cincinnati with Denzil to pick up some films. On the way back he talked me into buying a half share in the drive-in. So when we got back we went straight to Beattyville where Mahaffee lived. I stayed in the car and Denzil went in. When he came out he had bought Mahaffee's third too, so it was me and him with the drive-in."

Baker got to begin running it in 1959. "He walked in one day said he was going to Florida and I could run it," Baker said. "I never thought I'd be running a drive-in. I was working at a post office in Carlisle." He's been running it ever since.

Denzil went to Florida for a short time and started a mobile home park there.

"Daddy had a lot of ideas apparently," Faulkner said.

Faulkner's mom, the former teacher, was not quite as much of a daredevil, he recalls. "She stayed at home with us kids and I can remember her always being there. But she had some fun too."

Faulkner recalled a story his uncle, Teddy Martin, told him.

"Mom was teaching at the school and she had her brother, my uncle Teddy, in the class. One day he was acting up and she told him she was going to get him if he didn't stop," Faulkner said. "Well Teddy said he kept it up and when she came after him he jumped out the window thinking she wouldn't come after him. But she did. So he took off running thinking she wouldn't chase, him but she did. Finally Teddy thought he would jump in the swimming hole in the creek and he did. Mom was right there, in the water pulling him up and taking him back to the school. It had to be funny to see."

"The Lord has blessed me well. I had a fine family to raise me," Faulkner said in looking back at his life so far. "I have a fine wife and five boys. I'm blessed. Especially with family like David Lee to watch over me."

They say time heals all wounds, but you may never forget. Fifty years is a long time, but when you were there and you lost four members of your family, that never goes away.

"I think about it everyday. It gets a little easier, but you never get over it," Charles said. "You sit back and wonder what they have said or what would they have thought about this or that."

"You wonder how things may have been different," Baker added. Baker and his family was invited to go on that trip and would have been in a separate car. But something came up and they did not go.

"I was raised by good grandparents. I had my other grandparents, my dad's parents, Lydia and Cebert Faulkner. I was blessed," Faulkner said. "But I still wonder what if and I do think of them everyday."

"I think I was blessed and touched the most when we got our first grandchild, a girl," Faulkner said with a smile. "My son did me an honor and named her Lana Kay. That meant a lot."

Faulkner has shown that even when things seem to be at their worse, good things can still come out of them. A huge smile and new grandchild is just a part of the legacy that Denzil and Virginia Faulkner have left behind and Charles Faulkner has embraced.

The Times would like to thank Charles Faulkner and David Baker for sharing the story about Denzil and Virginia Faulkner. The school picture was provided by Charles Faulkner and was a courtesy of Lou Ellen Townsend. The school photo is dated about 1946. The Times is very appreciative of the Faulkner and Martin family members who provided photos and stories for Charles Faulkner, to share with us and you, the readers.

Virginia Martin Faulkner was a school teacher until she decided to stay home and raise her family, according to her son Charles Faulkner. But when she was a teacher she taught at the one-room school house on Cane (Cain) Creek. In the photo on the right was some of her students including her own brother. They were: (Front row, l to r) Ewell Summer and Durrett Stanhope; (2nd row) Romilus Townsend, E.L. # Intern reveals: Lessons learned from the extension office

(This will be Patrick McCoy's last article as Summer Extension Intern. Patrick has been a blessing to all of us this Summer. We wish him all the best of luck!)

By PATRICK MCCOY
Intern-Extension Ofc.

Well folks, my assignment as the Powell County Extension Intern is quickly coming to an end. This is to be the last article I'll work on with that assignment, with that being said, I'd like to take this last opportunity to relay onto you what these few months at the extension office has taught me. Let me tell you, I've learned a lot, met many new people and bonded more with those in the community that I already knew.

The first lesson came soon after I started at the extension office. Mike had warned me that it may take a while for some of the farmers to warm up to me. This may be the one time that I can say that Mr. Reed has never been so wrong in his life. Not only did the farmers and really everyone affiliated with the extension office or its associations take me in as if I had been an active part of extension all alone but they really opened their hearts and became good friends of mine.

The second lesson came from Family Consumer Sciences Agent Pam Dooley, as I helped her with the annual Homemakers Association. I can still hear her warning, that I am brave for helping out and that there is a good chance that I will be the only male there. I think she was concerned that I would feel out of place. In reality though I fit right in, I actually saw several familiar faces there, had a wonderful meal and made new acquaintances. If any of you know Pam, she always awards small gifts to those that help her in the operations of that association. I didn't get away with out being called out either. As she announced that the bravery award goes to Patrick McCoy I was genuinely surprised. My award was a plastic sheriff badge and inside its plastic holder I was once again reminded of Mike Reed's pitiful photography skills as the terrible picture of yours truly that aired in this very paper at the beginning of my internship, stared back at me. Everyone at that meeting got a good laugh at that, and it's really one of my fondest memories from this experience. So from this it was reinforced that going into any meeting or conference be prepared for a little embarrassment and just have a good time.

My third lesson is a culmination of all of the events that the Powell County Livestock Producers Association hosted or endorsed. The lesson itself being that the members of this association are some of the hardest working individuals in our community. No matter whether personal ailments or the rain put a damper on their moods, the members always showed up with a smile and did what had to be done to keep things rolling. This group of hardworking ladies and gentlemen deserve a great thanks from myself as well as anyone that they have met at events throughout our community. They truly have been a great help to extension in Powell County, even though some may still not know what extension is or what it does, most everyone here recognizes the livestock association, clad in their iconic blue shirts and a smile to go with it.

The fourth lesson is something I just observed. If you're working in extension, you probably don't have much room in your vehicle to haul stuff. This would be because you're still carrying items from previous events or for the ones to come. No doubt many of you have seen extension personnel driving down the road, to or from an event with enough supplies to cater 1,000 meals or educate half of Powell County on something or another. Some things are unchangeable, just as they should be. Some of the members of the Livestock Producers jokingly say that I've fit right in. Wonder if that's because my vehicle is just as cluttered as Mike's?

Fifthly, in taking a group of students to the state fair this past week I saw how much patience it takes to educate and direct children. Most of you probably remember the old saying, "It was like herding a bunch of cats." Well let me tell you, for what she does with these children in 4-H, Valerie Stewart deserves props.

My last lesson was something I knew to be true coming into this assignment. This lesson is the greatest one yet, extension agents, whether 4-H, family Consumer Sciences or Agriculture and Natural Resources, they all make daily sacrifices. Their sacrifices may be small or great, and may range from a sacrifice of personal time, funds or optimum health. Rain or shine they are at the office, out in the field, very seldom will you hear them say they had a lot of free time, even over a weekend. This past weekend itself is a prime example, where our county agriculture agent, Mike Reed gave up much of his weekend to help the Livestock Association with a fundraiser they took part in. For this reason and because of the value of the work they do, in relaying timely information, hosting events and organizing within the community, we should all extend a great thanks to our extension agents.

As an aside to this article I also would like to personally thank Mike Reed for all that he has done for me during my time at the Powell County Extension Office. I could not have asked for a better mentor. Yes, the work was hard, the hours long, but with his direction everything got completed concisely and in a timely manner. That in itself is a skill he taught me, that I am ever gracious for. So in closing, I hope you all realize everything the extension personnel do for you, hopefully you appreciate their efforts as much as I do now.

Ky Afield Outdoors: Reminders for Labor Day boating safety

(With as many Powell Countians who like to go to Cave Run Lake or Lake Cumberland during the final summer holiday weekend, we thought this was a fitting column for you. Have fun this weekend, but be safe! - JC)

By LEE MCCLELLAN
Special to the Times

The Labor Day weekend is the last hurrah of the boating season. Boaters, kayakers and canoeists will swarm waters all over Kentucky during the holiday weekend, squeezing the last bit of fun out of what many consider the last weekend of summer.

Boaters who plan to hit the water should keep in mind some important considerations before they launch their motor boat, canoe or kayak over the holiday weekend and the upcoming fall fishing season.

"There are more non-motorized boats, such as kayaks and canoes, on the water every day," said Zac Campbell, boating education coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Their low profile makes them easy to overlook by motor boat operators."

Sales of non-motorized boats, especially fishing kay-aks, rose dramatically over the past decade as more people found their low cost, simplicity of operation and ease of transport appealing.

"A canoe or kayak has much less maneuverability to avoid danger than a motorized boat," Campbell said. "Those using non-motorized boats should wear their lifejacket at all times while on the water."

Campbell also recommends canoeing or kayaking in a group as wakes from motor boats can upset a canoe or kayak. "It is a good idea to bring a square, throwable personal floatation device to help friends in case of trouble," Campbell said. "People in canoes and kayaks on our waters should stay close to shore and out of congested areas."

Boater's fatigue is another challenge for boat operators. The combination of sun, dehydration and the movement of the boat along with the concentration required to safely operate a boat takes its toll and can induce an almost trance-like state.

"Stabilizing yourself while driving the boat requires energy," Campbell said. "The pounding your body takes while riding in a boat also drains energy."

These stressors dull the senses and slow the reaction time of someone operating a boat.

"When you add consuming alcohol on top of these other factors, it makes for a potentially dangerous situation," Campbell said. "Boater's fatigue affects you without alcohol. Consuming alcohol makes it worse. Don't consume alcohol if you plan to operate a boat."

Navigational buoys often cause confusion for boat operators, especially inexperienced ones. "The red and green buoys mark the channel and keep boats from running aground in shallow areas," Campbell said. "Buoys are the traffic signals on our waterways and guide operators in a safe manner."

An easy to remember phrase, "red, right, returning," helps boaters navigate these buoys correctly. When the boat is moving upstream on a river or up the lake (away from the dam) on a reservoir, keep the red navigation buoy on your right.

The reverse is true when the boat is moving downstream on a river or down the lake (toward the dam) on a reservoir. Keep the green navigation buoy on your right: "red, right, returning."

"Other buoys must be obeyed as well," Campbell said. "You may receive a citation for violating a no wake zone."

Buoys with a diamond indicate a hazard or underwater obstruction while those with a crossed diamond mean the area is closed to boating. Buoys with a square relate non-regulatory information such as directions.

Boaters should double check their boats for the required safety equipment such as a U.S. Coast Guard approved lifejacket in good working order and readily available for all occupants of the vessel.

Persons under 12 years of age must wear their lifejacket at all times in the open portion of a boat that is underway.

Boats operating on Kentucky waters must have a working fire extinguisher that is not expired located for immediate use and signaling devices such as a loud whistle or horn. All boats must also have a Type IV personal floatation device designed to be thrown such as a ring or a square that resembles a seat cushion.

Keep these things in mind before hitting the water over the Labor Day weekend and during fishing season this fall.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALES

September 9, 2014

Pursuant to and compliance with the Judgment and Order of Sale of the Powell Circuit Court, The Commissioner will offer for sale at public outcry, to the highest and best bidder on September 9, 2014, beginning at the hour of 9:00 a.m. local time, at the Courthouse Door, Stanton, Kentucky property described in the action set out below. Said property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of the action, and upon the following terms and conditions.

(A) At the time of sale the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten (10%) percent of the purchase price with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days UNLESS OTHERWISE SHOWN AT THE END OF A PARTICULAR SALE. Or the purchaser shall have the privilege of paying all or a greater portion thereof than ten percent (10%) at the date of purchase or of prepaying the balance of the purchase price with accrued interest. In the event the successful bidder desires or elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish an acceptable surety thereon. Said bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest at the rate of twelve (12%) percent per annum from the date of sale until paid. The bond shall have the force and effect of a judgment in order to secure the payment of the balance of the purchase price and said bond shall constitute a prior and superior lien on the property until paid. No bond or earnest money shall be required in the event that the Plaintiffs hereto shall be the purchasers and the bid is less than their adjudged lien.

(B) The purchasers shall be required to assume and pay all taxes or assessments upon the property for the 2014 taxes and all subsequent years. All taxes or assessments upon the property for prior years shall be paid from the sale proceeds. The property shall further be sold subject to any delinquent State, County and/or City real estate taxes sold pursuant to the provisions of KRS Chapter 134 to any private purchaser during the pendency of this action.

(C) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances there on, and all existing liens recorded after the recording of the plaintiff's Lis Pendens Notice; excepting and subject to however, easements, restrictions, stipulations and covenants of record in the Powell County Court Clerk's Office, any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose, and any assessments for public improvements levied against the property.

(D) Purchasers shall not be entitled to the possession of the real estate until the Court's confirmation of the sale and the payment in full of the purchase price and delivery of the deed unless the Plaintiffs' are the purchasers.

(E) Risk of loss of the improvements of the real property shall pass to the purchaser or purchasers at the time of sale. The successful bidders may, (unless otherwise stated at the end of a sale) from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on the improvements on such property to the extent of the court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, with a loss clause payable to the Special Master Commissioner of the Powell Circuit Court.

(F) Upon default of the payment of the deposit or posting of bond by the purchaser, the Special Master Commissioner shall immediately re-sell the property upon the same terms and conditions set out herein.

(G) If the total purchase price is not paid in cash, the ten percent (10%) deposit made by the purchaser shall be applied to any expenses incurred by a default of the purchaser.

FURTHER INFORMATION REGARDING THESE SALES CAN BE FOUND IN THE POWELL CIRCUIT CLERK'S OFFICE BY THE FILE NAME AND NUMBER LISTED FOR EACH SALE. PROSPECTIVE BIDDERS ARE ADVISED AND ENCOURAGED TO CHECK THIS, THE REFERENCED DEED IN THE POWELL COUNTY CLERK'S OFFICE AND THE PROPERTY EVALUATOR'S OFFICE FOR MORE DETAIL. THE SPECIAL MASTER COMMISSIONER WILL HAVE NO ADDITIONAL INFORMATION NOT CONTAINED IN THESE OFFICES, THE SALES WILL PROCEED ONE RIGHT AFTER THE OTHER COMMENCING AT THE APPOINTED HOUR.
